PHILADELPHIA March 11, 2020 -- Klasko Immigration Law Partners LLP announces a firmwide sustainability initiative to reduce its negative environmental impact.

As leaders in providing cutting-edge, strategic, and practical strategies in employment-based immigration legal services, Klasko Immigration Law Partners, LLP strives to extend this innovative culture and approach to business practices as well. KILP recognizes the importance of business accountability in an integrated global community, and as an immigration law firm, is acutely aware of the effect the global community of countries, businesses, and individuals have on each other.

The firm has developed a committee to examine the firm's operations for sustainable improvement and to inspire staff members to engage in more environmentally conscious and sustainable activities, both in their professional work and in their everyday activities. In addition to operations improvement and staff education, the committee will work to support organizations and events that have a positive environmental impact on local communities.

The committee has adopted the axiom, "Reduce, Reuse, Recycle" to focus its efforts on reducing consumption, reusing materials where possible, and increase recycling. For updates on the latest sustainable improvements by the firm, please click here or visit KlaskoLaw.com.

Klasko Immigration Law Partners, LLP is proud to continue to refine its awareness as an industry-leading and growing law firm and its subsequent environmental impact, while it continues to provide renowned employment-based immigration legal services.
